

Chestnut Newsletter - Friday 28th November

Wow! I can hardly believe that next week it will be December and that means our Nativity is fast approaching! We have ramped up our rehearsals and I am sure you are all going to be in for a treat! Many thanks for the home learning too. There won't be any over the Christmas break but please keep reading.

English

We have been busy doing assessments this week but next week we will be writing a travel journal about Antarctica!

Maths

Year 2 will be starting a short unit on shape. We will be looking at 2D and 3D shapes and their properties. Year 1 will be continuing to consolidate their number work.

Science

This week we have looked at senses and how they help us to stay safe. We also talked about guide dogs who help blind people to live a full life.

Many thanks for your support and I look forward to seeing you at the Nativity performances
